KAPITEL 1 • MIA & JAKE

Es ist 06:37 Uhr. Wie jeden Morgen.
Ich habe mal gelesen, dass es besser sei, den Wecker auf eine ungerade Uhrzeit zu stellen, weil der Körper dann besser aus dem Tiefschlaf erwacht. Aber wahrscheinlich hat das eh nur eines dieser Fun-Fact-Profilen erfunden, auf deren Fotos mich meine beste Freundin Hatice immer tagt. Hatice fällt gerne auf so etwas rein.
Aber nach einem Traum wie dem von heute Nacht bin ich froh, wach zu sein. Egal ob zu einer geraden oder ungeraden Uhrzeit. Jede andere würde nach diesem Albtraum wahrscheinlich...

»Now I know that it hurts like hell to feel so much ...

... but as long as you can feel at all, it is worth the risk«

Sometimes Mia imagines her disease to be an enviable super power. In reality, it is actually quite problematic if you're not able to feel pain and are prone to constantly harm yourself without recognizing. Mia knows this ever since that one night when she lost her mother. The tormenting memories are her biggest secret. At least until she meets Jake who fights his own sorrows in the gym owned by Mia's father. He is the only one she can confide and he tells her about the dark parts of his life, too. Though they are as different as can be, Mia for the first time has the feeling that safety might actually be more than a mean illusion.

 An authentic young adult voice hitting a funny, vibrant tone

 Including a link to the Spotify playlist covering the songs from the book

Kyra Groh was born in 1990 and started to write her first short stories at the age of eleven. Ever since, writing is a close companion of hers. Until today she has published five novels.
